

Southern Breeze presents:

The Sketch-Book Event

featuring The Graveyard Book
by Neil Gaiman.

There are adventures in a graveyard for a young boy, particularly one that is raised by the resident ghosts. Neil Gaiman's The Graveyard Book takes readers on a trip somewhere between the dwelling place of the living and the dead.

You're invited to discover this mysterious world as Southern Breeze illustrators visit Oakland Cemetery for our first Sketch/Book Event. Bring your sketchbook, camera and your preferred illustration tools on this creative venture.

When: Saturday, September 29, 2012

Time: 10:00 am 'til noon
(we'll all go for lunch afterwards at Six Feet Under-of course)

Where: We'll meet at the entrance gate to Oakland Cemetery.

Parking is available in a lot just outside the front gate or along the street on Martin Luther King, Jr. Drive and Oakland Avenue. If you park inside the cemetery, just pull your vehicle off to the right of any asphalt-paved roadway, with enough space for other cars to pass.

RSVP: michael@austinillustration.com

Free to members of SCBWI

